"The annual gatherings of the auxiliary organizations of Ahmadiyya Muslim Jama'at India were held in an admirable manner in Qadian"

Members of the Ahmadiyya Muslim Community are divided into three different auxiliary organizations based on age. The education and training provided to each individual takes into account their mental capabilities and age requirements, with the aim of making them productive members of the nation and society.

"Ansarullah," meaning "Helpers of Allah," is the organization for male members of the Ahmadiyya Community who are above the age of 40. Throughout the year, this organization strives to prepare these individuals to play a meaningful role in the interest of the nation and society by benefiting from the experiences and examples of elderly and senior members of the community.

"Khuddam-ul-Ahmadiyya" is the youth auxiliary organization of the Ahmadiyya Muslim Community. Its purpose is to educate and train young people in such a way that they develop high morals and strong determination, enabling them to play a prominent role in the progress of the nation and country and to serve humanity. Under this organization, there is a separate branch called "Atfal-ul-Ahmadiyya" for children aged 7 to 15. The focus of this branch is to provide religious and moral training to Ahmadi children from an early age so that, as they grow up, they not only become valuable members of society and the nation but also stand out in terms of religious and moral values.

"Lajna Ima’illah" is the women's auxiliary organization of the Ahmadiyya Community. It works to prepare women to fulfill their significant responsibilities in the development of society. Ahmadi girls are encouraged to pursue higher education and uphold modesty and chastity. Special emphasis is given to mothers regarding their responsibilities in the upbringing of their children.

Within this organization, there is a separate branch called "Nasirat-ul-Ahmadiyya" for girls aged 7 to 15. The focus of this branch is to provide education and training to Ahmadi girls from an early age.

During this gathering, various academic and sports competitions are being held for all participants within their respective organizations, with the aim of nurturing and developing their abilities.

Men, women, and children from across India have arrived at the Ahmadiyya headquarters in Qadian to participate in this event.

Throughout the year, these auxiliary organizations strive for peace across India. They also engage in various public welfare activities such as free medical camps, cleaning and maintenance of public spaces through "Waqar-e-Amal" (dignity of labor), assistance to the needy, visiting patients in hospitals, tree plantation drives, blood donation camps, and more.

All auxiliary organizations of the Ahmadiyya Muslim Community operate under the remarkable spiritual leadership of Hazrat Mirza Masroor Ahmad, Khalifatul Masih V (May Allah be his Helper). Under his guidance, they carry out public welfare activities across India.

Every participant attending this gathering pledges to offer their services for the progress of the nation and country. Through this event, members of the community are trained to enhance their sense of duty towards fulfilling the rights of God and the rights of people, and to improve their moral standards.
